

A.F.L. Will Back Strike To Down Mine Injustice

Gompers Says Double-edged Unfairness in Coal Situation Must End
RESENTS PROFITEERING
Enough Miners and Cars Are Available to Supply Country With Ample Fuel

(Copyright 1922 by United Press)
Washington — The American Federation of Labor intends to support staunchly the miners should a nationwide coal strike come.
That organization holds, too, it is up to union labor to see that both railroading and mining are restored to proper functioning and properly serving the people of the country.
President Samuel Gompers of the American Federation of Labor made these points clear Thursday in an interview with the press.
For the miners to yield "would be to yield to injustice," declared the fighting head of the nation's labor movement discussing the present coal situation which threatens a strike on April 1.

WHOLE U. S. SUFFERS

"The injustice contemplated by the mine owners is an injustice that is aimed against the miners and the great masses of the coal consumers of the country as well," he continued.
"For it is a double edged injustice that would drive down wages and maintain inflated prices."
"There are more than enough idle miners to bring into being an ample and more than ample coal supply, and there are more than enough idle cars in which to load that coal," he said. "There are more than enough railroad men to maintain and operate those idle cars and there are people who would like the coal and who would like it at a price that would allow the miner a fair wage and the owner a fair profit, but they resist a price that makes every operator a super-Croesus while the miner either goes idle or so nearly so as to make his wage a pittance."

The cure for the present situation in the railroad and mining industry, Gompers held to be a return to joint negotiations and agreement with operators—not an intermediary step like the railroad labor board which he regards as an unfair institution in its dealings with labor.

WICKED FEW ARE DEBASING MOVIES

New York—"One hundred million American dollars invested in the film industry are endangered by the acts of a dozen or so wastrels and degenerates," Carl Laemmle, one of the greatest movie magnates, declared Thursday.
"Ninety-nine per cent of the film personnel is clean and sound. We do not intend to allow this infinitesimal minority in the business to wreck one of America's greatest industries. We are going to clean up that element."

Laemmle is president of the Universal Manufacturing company, which controls the fortunes and destinies of thousands of movie actors and built Universal City, the first big movie community in California.

EIGHT BANDITS CAUGHT ON TRAINS

St. Paul, Minn.—Eight Sioux City men, members of a daring gang of robbers operating out of here, were taken from two Minneapolis passenger trains Wednesday night by local officers.

Gus Danielson, chief of detectives, believes that in the arrests he has made of the ten men who Tuesday night drove to St. Paul, one of Minneapolis' most fashionable resorts, lined 75 guests along the wall, searched them and escaped with nearly $8,000 in cash and gems. A telephone call from the sheriff of Hennepin county, Minn., late Wednesday afternoon, brought the arrests. Danielson was told that the men were thought to be enroute to Sioux City, but go only meager descriptions.

CHARGE MOVIE MEN HUSHED UP TAYLOR PROBE

Stone Wall of Silence Suddenly Surrounds Hollywood Movie Colony

UNEARTH ORIENTAL CULT

British Government Offers Help To Apprehend Mysterious Slayer of Director

Los Angeles—Police have been bribed, witnesses silenced, evidence suppressed, in a gigantic plot engineered from behind the scenes in film land to defeat the ends of justice in the Taylor mystery. These sensational charges were under investigation Thursday by District Attorney Thomas Lee Woolwine, hurriedly summoned from his vacation.
Financial agencies backing the film industry and stars whose reputations are imperiled by impending disclosures in connection with the slaying of the director, have taken steps to suppress evidence which would incriminate prominent motion picture people, county and police officers charged Thursday.

FIND BLANK WALL

Police investigators Thursday admitted they have suddenly found a blank wall on every side. Evidence, once in evidence, has been removed or distorted by well paid agents of the film interests, they declare.
The British government's secret service will be used to hunt down Taylor's murderer, the British consul general's office here has announced. It has a theory on the crime "which cannot yet be disclosed."
Miss Normand's letters and telegrams were found during the night when detectives searched the bungalow in which Taylor was killed. The hand of the handkerchief initiated M. M. L. was found in the same search.

FIND NEW EVIDENCE

The letters and the handkerchiefs were turned over to the chief deputy district attorney, W. C. Doran.
The substance of Mabel's letters was not made public.
The hand of the handkerchief, which was found in the Far East, and strange teachings in the realms of the psychic and the spiritual, came into the investigation of the William D. Taylor murder case Thursday.

District Attorney Woolwine let it become known that his new investigation of Taylor's death will cover an alleged "cult" which seemed to steep itself in the mysticism of the Orient and apply this mysticism to the relations between its members.
Taylor, it was declared, is said to have been intimate with members of this little circle of mystics which centered in Los Angeles.

MADE FANATICS

Its teachings according to investigators drove members to the verge of fanaticism and in this fanaticism, they thought there might be found a solution for the mystery surrounding Taylor's murder.
Public Administrator Bryan let it be known that investigation showed Taylor's estate, believed to have amounted to $200,000, had been deposited in a New York bank and efforts Thursday were being made to locate it. Under Taylor's will, his daughter, Ethel Daisy, is the sole beneficiary. She is still in New York.

Williams, Football Captain, Proves He Violated No Rules Playing Baseball

Williams admitted Wednesday that he had played ball with his home town team at Edgerton, Wis., but declared he had received no money in payment. As he had first obtained permission of the university authorities, this was declared not in violation of conference rules.

Scribbles Confession Of Murder, Takes Life To Foil Sheriff Posse

By United Press Leased Wire
Manitowish, Wis.—"I killed Jack Powers and I am not sorry that I did it."
This confession, scribbled on a small piece of paper, was found pinned to the shirt of John Donahue, who killed himself in his cabin Wednesday night. The posse, which had besieged the cabin since Monday, closed in on the cabin when the fire suddenly ceased.
They entered the cabin. All was quiet, but on searching found Donahue's body in the cellar.
The death of Donahue brings to an end one of the most sensational man hunts in the history of the northern Wisconsin woods.
According to Mrs. Powers, wife of Donahue's victim, her husband, Jack Powers, well known resort keeper of northern Wisconsin, was killed on the night of Jan. 28. She said he went to visit Donahue late at night. In the morning Donahue appeared, saying he had killed Powers and was going to hold her prisoner.
John Iverson, rural mail carrier, was the first to discover that she was being held prisoner. On entering the Powers home where Donahue held Mrs. Powers prisoner, he was covered by Donahue's rifle. He was released after Donahue had told him he would surrender to the authorities, saying he had killed Powers in self defense.
The authorities were notified and since Monday have besieged the cabin, exchanging fire with Donahue at intervals during the three days, determined to take the slayer dead or alive.

WILL PUSH LABOR AND FARM LEADERS IN VACANT JOBS

New Political Movement Will Develop at Conference in Chicago Feb 20

By United Press Leased Wire
Washington — The seed of a new major political movement—to represent labor and the farmer—is being sown here.
The new venture which is attempted primarily to elect farm and labor representatives to the next congress will be launched in Chicago, Feb. 20.
On that date 150 representatives of railway labor, farm organizations, the Nonpartisan league and smaller delegations of labor organizations will meet on the call of the railroad brotherhoods.

From leaders of the movement, the United Press Thursday learned that the purpose of the meeting will be to:
1. Designate congressional candidates who will push farm and labor legislation.
2. Organize state and civic political bodies in various localities to urge the election of these men.
3. Draw up a modified "platform" composed for the most part of resolutions specifying what legislation would be desirable.
4. Perhaps unofficially nominate candidates for their own places where Republican and Democratic nominees fail to coincide with their desires.

FORD WILL OFFER TO CONVERT OLD SHIPS INTO JUNK

U. S. is Opposed to Spectacular Sinking of Battleships in Ocean

Washington—Henry Ford will be given an opportunity to bid for the American battleships to be scrapped under the naval limitation treaty, it was learned Thursday at the navy department.
Ford recently announced that he was willing to bid for the American navy and break up the big ships into scrap iron.

It became known Thursday that a special board headed by Admiral Taylor, chief naval constructor, is studying plans for scrapping ships and that there is a strong sentiment for selling these vessels outright to concerns which would junk them.
Naval officers are said to oppose a spectacular sinking of the doomed ships believing that the steel can be used for peace time purposes.

VALUE NOT LARGE

Philadelphia, Pa.—The junk value of the names of American, British and Japan is approximately $30,475,579—less than the cost of one new dreadnought.

The estimate was made by Joseph G. Hiner, president of the Henry A. Hiner Sons company, the premier ship junker of the United States. To his yard—called the "graveyard of ships"—have come castoff vessels of many nations to be broken up for junk.

There will be no Sunday shows, so Shank has given the opportunity "to some ambitious preacher" to gather his flock in the places for worship.
"We'll have the biggest Sunday school in town," the mayor said. No admission will be charged to the theaters as the actors will be on the city payroll.
"They'll play 'Uncle Tom's Cabin' and some other good old fashioned shows such as 'Fast Lynne,'" Shank said.

BRITAIN LIKES U. S. PLAN FOR ENVOY TO IRISH

Dominion Ministers Liked for Disposing of Matters Outside of Politics

REVISE DIPLOMATIC PLAN

Each British Colony Clamors for Direct Representation in United States

By David Lawrence, Copyright, 1922 by Post Pub. Co.
Washington—Great Britain will look with favor upon the sending of a minister to the United States to represent the Irish free state and will offer no objection to the sending of an American minister to Dublin.
This information was obtained by this correspondent Wednesday from official sources. Also in Canada, New Zealand, Australia, South Africa, or any British dominions hereafter shall wish direct representation of a diplomatic character at Washington to handle their own special problems, the British government will be agreeable to it and will ask only that the dominion ministers be linked up with the British embassy at Washington so that in matters affecting the British empire as a whole, the ambassador as the senior representative of the king, shall speak for the united British nations.

PROBLEM IS ACUTE

Although the problem has seemed to grow acute because of the grant of dominion status to Ireland, British policy has for some time been in process of evolution to meet the growing demand of Canada, New Zealand, Australia, and South Africa for direct diplomatic representation. The British foreign office has always maintained in Paris a British minister to handle the duties of a minister to the United States and to France. Both are accredited to the French government but the minister concerns himself with tariff matters and questions which do not have a political aspect. So there is precedent for the harmonious relationship of the minister to the United States with varying functions.

Representative Rainey of Illinois, has lately introduced a bill providing for the sending of an American minister to Ireland. Some people have thought this would involve the delicate question of recognizing Ireland as an Independent Sovereignty and have imagined that the British government would offer objections.
The truth is that Great Britain is not going to stand on formalities but will welcome any move towards contact between her dominions and the United States as it is possible to have. For instance, the United States maintains in Dublin a consul who has for many months been dealing directly with the Sinn Fein group. Similarly the United States has a consular general at Ottawa to deal directly with the American government.

WANT ONE MOUTHPIECE

As a matter of fact, the British government would prefer to have each dominion handle the part of external policy which affects a particular country, but is naturally desirous of having one mouthpiece on foreign policy as a whole. In the treaty between the Irish free state and Great Britain, the latter retains control of military and naval policy. On questions so broad as to affect the whole empire there will be but one point of contact—the British ambassador—but on the thousand and one questions which Canada, for instance, has with the Washington government, every day there will not be the slightest objection to direct communication between Canada and the United States or between the Irish free state and the United States.

UNDERWOOD IS FOR TREATY APPROVAL

Disappoints Democrats Who Hoped He Would Fight Work of G. O. P. Delegates

Washington — Senator Underwood Thursday dashed the hopes of some Democratic senators that he would give only perfunctory help in the fight for ratification of the arms conference treaties.
Underwood, expressing his enthusiasm for the entire program predicted all the treaties would be ratified with many votes to spare.
Administration leaders are much pleased at Underwood's whole-hearted support at the same time some of the Democratic colleagues are displeased and disquieted. Some Democrats think Underwood, as the party leader should not commit himself completely to the support of a program favored almost entirely by the opposing party.

Some of them have turned towards Woodrow Wilson for guidance. But Wilson's closest friends in the senate said Thursday the former president would not make any effort to influence or guide senate Democrats.

Underwood indicated Thursday that he may not call a conference of Democrats to explain to them the work of the conference.
Senators Borah and Johnson intend to ask for the confidential reports of the committee in addition to the minutes of the committee meetings, which will be furnished.

BRITISH TAKE GRAVE VIEW OF SUDDEN RAIDS

England is Ready to Act if Unionists Retaliate for Kidnapping 200 Men

By United Press Leased Wire
London — If stories of Sinn Fein raids into Ulster are true, the government takes "the gravest view of the situation, such acts being a breach of the truce, gravely impeding the Irish police treaty," the government telegraphed Michael Collins.
Collins was asked whether steps had been taken to release the kidnapped Orangemen, and to provide against recurrence of "these grave outrages."

5,000 TROOPS CALLED

Belfast—An Ulster army, 5,000 strong, composed of police and troops has moved to the frontier separating the northern provinces from the south.
A first line of defense has been strung out along the border and Ulster rendered practically impregnable against attacks by extremists of the Irish republican army.
Release of the Ulster captives kidnapped Wednesday was expected to follow this military maneuver on the part of the unionists.

Fear of reprisals gripped Ireland Thursday as full reports of Sinn Fein extremists attacks against thirteen Ulster towns in which nearly 2,000 unionists were kidnapped reached here.

CAPTURE 64 RAIDERS

The Belfast police Thursday claimed that they captured 64 of the Irish republican army raiders. Unionists who were kidnapped from Sligo have been released, it was announced.
While the disorders along the border line between Ulster and the south seemed to have died down Thursday, the fear of continued Ulster volunteers striking back kept officials and inhabitants on edge.
The houses of prominent Orangemen within a 40-mile area were attacked by the Sinn Fein raiders armed with revolvers and bombs. There was considerable damage with casualties.

SEIZE AUTOS

Police, hearing of the raids, massed on the highways and headed off some of the Sinn Fein bands as they were speeding along in motor cars with their prisoners. Several cars were captured together with a quantity of arms and 15 Sinn Feiners.
Casualties on both sides were reported when Sinn Feiners ambushed police at Newtown.
Sir James Craig, Ulster premier, sent a message from London ordering the capture of the Sinn Fein bands and fully armed to prevent further raids. He announced he had arranged for distribution of arms "to protect the border."

"I reiterate our determination never to surrender any portion of Ulster without the consent of its people," he said. "These dastardly outrages merely strengthen our determination that what Ulster has, she holds."

GOV. BLAINE HAS DEVOTED LIFE TO STUDY OF TAXES

State's Chief Executive Will Speak in Lawrence Chapel Sunday Evening

Taxes, who should pay them? Where should the heaviest burden of taxation rest? What obstacles stand in the way of an equitable single tax? In the real estate and personal property tax unfair because it does not touch a large percentage of our population?

When Gov. John J. Blaine speaks on "Taxation" at Lawrence Memorial chapel next Sunday evening under the auspices of the Peoples forum he will give his opinion on these and other questions. It will be an opinion gained by a breadth of view uncommon to all but a handful of the public men of the state.

Ever since he entered politics in his native city in the western part of Wisconsin, Gov. Blaine has studied and investigated the matter of taxes. He has done this because he feels that the success of a democratic government depends largely upon the equitable distribution of the cost of that government upon the people who support it.

Terms of office as a state senator and attorney general have given Mr. Blaine a wide opportunity to pursue his study of the matter. He has seen taxation not only from the standpoint of one called upon to help enact the tax measures but also from the standpoint of one who must administer these laws. This has enhanced his opportunity to pick out the weak spots in our present taxation system and these he will be prepared to portray to his hearers next Sunday evening. The program begins at 7:30.

POLICE UNABLE TO LEARN IDENTITY OF DEAD STRANGER

Two Inquiries from Milwaukee and Cudahy Fail to Clear Up Mystery

The story and photograph of the unidentified man who committed suicide here last Saturday night by drinking carbolic acid, appearing in the Milwaukee and Chicago papers brought two calls of inquiry to Appleton police Wednesday by long distance telephone.

One of these came from Milwaukee and the other from Cudahy. In both cases, relatives were hunting for a missing man but neither description tallied with that of the unidentified man in the morgue.

It will be possible to keep the body only two days more, Chief George T. Prim said Thursday. If it is identified during that time it will be placed in the vault at Riverside cemetery.

URGE FARM SCHOOL ON RESERVATION

With very little remodeling, the Oneida Indian school buildings which have been advertised for sale could be turned into a joint county agricultural school according to farm interests in Brown and Outagamie counties which are advocating the farm school. Children from the Oneida schools have been sent to other places and the buildings are about to be disposed of. They include 80 acres for the school proper, and 45.71 acres for the school farm.

Because all schools of agricultural instruction are so far from both Outagamie and Brown counties, farmers have felt a need for another school. It has been strongly advocated that these buildings on the reservation be purchased and converted at once into an agricultural school where farmer boys will be closer to home. Transportation to the school is good and the land in the vicinity is fertile.

Ellingwood of the faculty of the University of Wisconsin extension division. Mr. Ellingwood has had several years' experience in retail store methods, having traveled over a large part of the United States, installing store systems and studying retail methods and practice.

The course will open at 7:30 Friday evening in the Vocational school building. The class meetings will be of lesson-lecture type with discussions. The subject matter will be treated in connection with practical problems designed for this purpose. The meetings will be held each Friday evening for 16 weeks. The course gives a thorough, workable knowledge of modern retailing, according to W. S. Ford director of the Vocational school. Enrollment should be made at the office of the school.

CITY CROWDED WITH BARGAIN SEEKERS

The business section of Appleton is fairly well filled today with shoppers who are taking advantage of the bargains offered by Appleton merchants on "dollar day". Many of the stores were filled a few minutes after the doors were opened and all were crowded the entire day.

In many instances the advertised bargains were seized long before noon. Merchants were agreeably surprised by the response to the advertising campaign, it was reported from several stores.

YELLOW TRAIL GETS HELP IN OSHKOSH

Sawdust City Merchants Believe Highway is Deserving of Support

It is very likely that Oshkosh will continue its support of the Yellowstone Trail, Hugh G. Corbett said Thursday after attending a meeting of Oshkosh merchants Wednesday evening.

When the matter came up for discussion as to whether the city should continue its support or withdraw entirely from the Yellowstone Trail association, the majority of the merchants strongly favored continued support. They were of the opinion that the Yellowstone trail has done much for Oshkosh and is worthy of the support by business men. They believed it would be detrimental to business to have the trail relocated over some other route, as was suggested by trail officials if cities along its present route do not show more cooperation with the association.

Regulations for control of the Oshkosh tourists' camping site were discussed at the meeting. Last year a number of tourist parties spent several weeks on the site and this caused overcrowding and forced other parties to go somewhere else to find a camping place. It is proposed to divide the site into two sections, one for transient parties and another for those who desire to remain any length of time. A rental would be charged those who remained in the park over a certain time limit.

ASK TO HEAR ABOUT CREDIT BUREAU HERE

Hugh G. Corbett, secretary of Appleton Chamber of Commerce, attended a meeting of the retail division of the Oshkosh Association of Commerce Wednesday night and told of the work being done by the merchants information bureau here in connection with chamber of commerce work.

Mr. Corbett was asked to describe the local bureau because of its reputation as "one of the leading local credit bureaus" in the state. Miss Mildred Hutchinson, who has conducted this work for many months, is given great credit for the bureau's efficient standing.

COURT OF HONOR TESTS FOR SCOUTS

Examinations for first class and second class scouts and merit badges will be given at a meeting of the Court of Honor of Appleton Boy Scout council Friday night in scout headquarters. Many boys who wish to advance in scout work during anniversary week will take the examinations.

Plans are complete for the anniversary hike to be taken by Appleton and Kaukauna scouts Saturday morning. The Appleton Scouts will leave headquarters here at 9 o'clock and hike toward Kimberly while the Kaukauna scouts will ride to Kimberly on the electric car and hike to a place agreed upon for the noon camp. The Appleton and Kaukauna scouts will cook lunch at the camp at noon and late in the afternoon hike to their homes. Scout tests will be given on the hikes and at camp.

FORMER SCOUT LEADER TALKS TO HIS OLD BOYS

E. R. Henderson, former scout commissioner in Appleton, gave a talk of appreciation at a meeting of Appleton Boy Scout troop No. 8 held Tuesday evening in the Congregational church parlors. In his talk Mr. Henderson touched upon the Henderson memorial contest which was conducted among the scouts in honor of Kenneth Henderson who died several months ago.

Plans were made for an entertainment to be given for parents of scouts of Troop No. 8 on Tuesday, Feb. 21. The program will include scout work and discussion of advantages of scouting.

A social meeting followed the session and refreshments were served. Mrs. Stanley Lowe was an unexpected benefactress when she sent doughnuts to the boys.

Listen Folks:

In my travels I saw a wonderful picture the other day and when I passed the BIJOU yesterday I noted the photographs on this same picture with a sign reading, Opening Friday. This picture which is sure is a knock-out if you are looking for good, clean and human entertainment. Let the children come with you as they surely will enjoy it. Don't forget tomorrow is the day it opens and will show for three days.

The BIJOU Manager told me he has

SOLDIERS HINT AT COMPENSATION PLAN THEY WANT

Chamber of Commerce To Vote at Once in National Bonus Referendum

Ballots for chamber of commerce referendum No. 28 in regard to the proposed adjusted compensation act were sent to members of Appleton Chamber of Commerce Wednesday. The result of individual votes for all the organizations in the country will determine the attitude the United States Chamber of Commerce will take on the question.

An excerpt from a letter of Hanford MacNider, national commander of the American legion, is being sent with each ballot. The letter reads:

"You would not take one of two men equally paid in your employ and send one out on a particularly dangerous mission which he gladly undertakes out of his loyalty to you, risking his life, leaving his family, ready to encounter or surmount any difficulties gladly to serve you—meaning time multiply the wage of the man retained home in safety many times and on the first man's return not give him at least an even deal with the other. Of course you wouldn't, even if you hadn't promised him that you'd see he got a square deal when he returned."

Beneath the letter, the local chamber has attached the following: "A canvass of the Oney Johnson post taken at its regular meeting Monday evening, Feb. 6, disclosed the fact that among 300 ex-soldiers present, all but three desired home aid in preference to the cash feature in the five fold adjusted compensation measure."

All ballots sent out must be voted and returned to the local chamber not later than Feb. 21.

HOME DEPARTMENT SEEKS MEMBERS

Considerable Interest Is Being Shown in Work of Home Economics Division

The Home economics department of the Appleton Women's club would like to comb the city for workers who are interested in one or more of the enterprises which it has taken up in the last few weeks. Before committees for the apron tea to be given by the department for members of the club and all Appleton women are appointed Mrs. J. D. Steele, chairman of the department would like to get in touch with every Appleton woman who wishes to take part in the work of the department. Mrs. R. H. Purdy has given her home for this tea on Feb. 22.

Because this department has to do largely with homes, a great many women are already interested enough to work on the various committees which include those for the food sales, for the making of covers for bags, and for the social enterprises of the department. These committees need many women who cook, many who sew and many who enjoy planning novel social events. A postcard set to Mrs. Steele or a phone call to the Women's clubroom will make you a member of the department and will let the committees know in which one you are interested enough to carry on with the work of the department. A social chairman and a sewing chairman besides the committees for the tea will be appointed as soon as the registration in the department includes more women.

The establishment of a woman's exchange where every needleworker or maker of any handicraft will have an opportunity to market her work for pocket money or a pet charity has won much favor. The interest in the cookbook which is one of the activities of the department has resulted in orders for the book before its committees are appointed.

OSHKOSH GOLF STAR IS GOING GOOD IN FLORIDA

M. A. Carroll of Oshkosh, a nephew of E. P. Carroll of Appleton, who is well known at the Riverview Country club links where he has frequently played golf, participated in a thrilling match at Palm Beach, Fla., with a Mr. Langford. The match is given a column in the Daily News of that city which said Carroll was defeated 1 up in 19 holes.

The Daily News said in part:

"By far the best match of the day was that between Carroll and Langford. These two were figured to be a 50-50 choice in this contest and the result of their game showed how true to form they played. Each man was good and had in spots but on the wheel both of their games were fine, the medal score of 75 apiece, attesting to this statement."

STUDENTS TOO NOISY; ARRESTED AT NEENAH

Merton Siegel and Webster Crowell, said to be students at Lawrence college, spent the past week-end in Neenah city jail after being arrested on a charge of drunkenness and disorderly conduct.

The two youths went to Neenah Saturday night to attend a dance and were arrested about midnight. Monday morning they were arraigned before a justice of the peace and were fined $10 and costs. Being unable to pay their fines they were forced to prolong their sojourn in the jail until they secured the money and were released.

Maybe This Is Why Dogs Send Up Howl

From now on unlicensed dogs will have something to howl about. So sayeth Herman J. Kamps, county clerk, who is informing town and village officers throughout the county in regard to the dog license law.

Every dog over six months old must be licensed before Feb. 1. Unlicensed dogs are liable to seizure by an impounding officer and may be destroyed after the expiration of a certain time limit.

So from now on uneasy must lie the neck that bears no license tag.

CITY ATTORNEY'S PAY IS BOOSTED; NO OTHER CHANGES

Council Makes Only One Change in Salaries Paid City Officials

The common council, at its meeting in the city hall Wednesday evening, approved the salary schedule of city attorneys from $1,500 to $1,800 a year and left the salaries of all the other officers, elective and appointive the same as they now are.

When the question of fixing salaries was brought up by E. L. Williams, city clerk, a motion was presented by Alderman A. W. Laabs and carried by unanimous vote that the council go into session as a committee of the whole to discuss the salary question. After a committee meeting of one hour and 35 minutes the council resumed regular session, the committee report was presented and adopted without further discussion.

Salaries of all officers of the city for the year beginning April 11, 1922, will be as follows:

Mayor, $2,000; aldermen, $5 a meeting and 50 cents an hour committee service; clerk, $2,100; treasurer, $2,100; assessor $2,100; attorney $1,800; engineer, who also acts as street commissioner, $2,750; physician $1,350; health officer $1,350; sealer of weights and measures $1,140; poor farm keeper and matron, $1,200; commissioner of poor, $800; weighmaster, $400; janitor of city hall $960.

The council voted unanimously to dispense with the offices of controller and constable, provided for under the new city charter law.

MRS. BESS LEADS ASSOCIATION COWS

R. R. Griswold's Grade Holstein Produced 70 Pounds of Butterfat in Month

Bess, a grade Holstein, owned by R. R. Griswold, won production honors for the month of January over 53 other high producing cows in the Dale and Hortonville Cow Testing association according to the monthly report of Orin A. Mhuarik, official tester.

This is a signal honor for Bess and her owner because of the fact that the other 53 cows all produced more than 40 pounds of butter fat during the month. Bess produced 1,209 pounds of milk testing 5.8 per cent and yielding 70 pounds of butter fat.

O. P. Cuff, proprietor of the White Pine farm, wins the month's honors for the highest producing herd. His seven cows averaged 50.3 pounds of butter.

FIX UP ROADS OR MAIL WILL BE SHUT OFF-NEW RULING

Postmaster General Insists That Highways Shall be Made Passable

Uncle Sam has decided that no road work no rural mail delivery is a rule that ought to work both ways. An announcement received by Postmaster Gustave Keller from Will H. Hays, postmaster general, requires postal officials to report all impassable roads to the fourth assistant postmaster general.

In the announcement postmasters are told that if carriers find roads impassable the patrons of the route and the persons responsible for repairing the road must be notified. If the road is improved within a short time the fourth assistant postmaster general is to be notified and mail delivery service is to be withdrawn until the road is made passable.

"In many cases," Mr. Keller said, "carriers are prevented from covering their routes by a short stretch of road over which they cannot travel. Frequently the roads are in such condition as to damage the carriers' vehicles or even endanger their lives. The department has now decided that such conditions must no longer exist as it is not fair to the carrier who must pay out of his own pocket the cost of expensive damage to his vehicles."

NEED MEMBERS TO BUILD NEW HOMES

In all probability the board of directors of the Appleton Building and Loan association will send out a "S. O. S." call at its meeting in Citizens' National bank building Thursday evening. A membership drive is contemplated.

In order to meet the demands for funds with which to build new homes the coming summer it finds it extremely necessary to increase its membership, otherwise it will be compelled to turn down a number of the applications.

Indications are the campaign will be put on during the month of March and everyone interested in the growth and welfare of the city will be given an opportunity to become a member. The building of many new homes will depend on the success of the campaign.

ADVERTISING THE FOX RIVER VALLEY

Appleton can claim credit for originating the idea to give nation-wide publicity to the Fox river valley. Appleton is doing things. Appleton is helping itself with no purely selfish interest at heart but with an earnest desire for the progress and prosperity of its neighboring cities in the valley. This is the true spirit of progress and development.

The Fox river valley as a whole is a garden spot of commerce and industry. Its rich farm lands, its waterway, and its railroad facilities are in themselves an invitation to the further establishment of substantial and extensive industries, and subsequently to an influx of a hard working, right minded lot of people. To accelerate this development of industry and growth in population the Fox river valley must be known to the rest of the world. Some say that it is, but there are many men of judgment and broad experience in our commerce associations who know that the Fox river valley is as yet unheard of in many parts of the United States. At least its outstanding features and its advantageous industrial centers are little appreciated abroad.

Every dollar spent in giving publicity to the Fox river valley will yield a big profit to Appleton as well as to the other cities concerned provided the manner in which it is spent is in an efficient and highly effective form of advertising. There must be nothing piecemeal about it, nor can there be a ruthless waste of funds in unsuitable mediums of in unreadable literature. In other words, there should be ample provision made for the employment of expert knowledge, the value of which is proportionate to the total amount of funds available for the purpose. This we trust will be the intent and purpose of the committee in charge when its plans are made known to the public.

AMERICA APPROVES THE NEW POPE

From the little that is known in America of Pope Pius XI, the new head of the Catholic church is a dignitary of broad views and deep human sympathy. Cardinal for little more than half of a year, and archbishop for but a few years, his election to the papacy marks the elevation of a comparatively obscure and unknown man to one of the highest and most responsible of offices.

American churchmen express sincere gratification over the election of Cardinal Ratti. They remark on his liberal proclivities and on his friendly attitude toward the Italian government, and they evidently are pleased with the prospect that church government will be along lines that blend moral principles with modern political, social and business conditions.

Pius XI is described as a young-old prelate. He is sixty-four years old, but physically large and in perfect health. Whereas his connection with the Ambrosian library and archives in Milan for many years, and his subsequent direction of the Vatican library in Rome, give no hint as to his experience or tendencies, his difficult work during the past few years marks him as a pope who should be gifted with a thorough understanding of human nature.

Ratti's first important administrative appointment was his assignment to Poland, with the title of archbishop, to establish the church's affairs on a solid basis in the new republic. In order to be successful as archbishop of Milan, a most important manufacturing center, it would be necessary for him to be well informed and fairly disposed with regard to industrial and social problems of the times. Both in Poland and at Milan the results that he achieved won him praise and recognition.

Because of the pope's influence as spiritual guide is felt in all lands and climes, serious-minded persons of whatever religious profession are interested in the choice for head of the Catholic church of a man inclined to concern himself with social problems. Pius XI evidently has the qualifications which appeal most favorably to the American point of view.

Similarly, it is evident from the pope's statement that America has qualities which appeal to his holiness. He recognizes in the United States what the liberal thinking people and statesmen of all Europe see in it, the spirit and power, which is to lead the world to peace and justice. The pope is a pacifist, in that he believes it to be the duty of civilized nations to coordinate their efforts and policies as to put an end to war and make certain the adjudication of differences by reason rather than by force. The weight of his office on the side of universal and permanent peace will be very great. It is to be numbered among the irresistible influences that are rapidly closing in on politicians and militarists to compel world union for the prevention of war. Pope Pius XI has created a decidedly favorable impression throughout the United States.

THE SHOW-DOWN IN GERMANY?

The general strike in Berlin no doubt marks the culmination of the effort to dovetail paper money of diminishing value with the increasing cost of living. The climax has long been expected, and if the strike is not the climax it is almost certainly the beginning of it.

The much-discussed prosperity of Germany is a complex condition, with disadvantages, as well as advantages. The chance to sell goods in foreign markets at low prices tends to increase the cost of production, with the result that prices must steadily rise and finally meet those of other lands. At the same time, the value of paper money necessarily decreases according to the quantity issued.

For these and other reasons it has been questionable as to what extent corporations and workmen have profited by the industrial activity. In all probability the workmen have not benefited as much as a few of the industries, yet it is probable that most of the industries have not prospered as much as is generally believed.

Obviously, competitive nations will not have to worry much longer about low production costs in Germany and extremely low competitive prices, Germany must have stable money with which to live and pay taxes.

"JIMMY" COX

"Jimmy" Cox is out to lead the Democrats again if he can persuade them. He has flown his Dayton newspaper office long enough to attend a meeting with others of the party, shy a few choice mudballs at the Republicans as of old and prove that he is just as dangerous and bad a boy as ever.

On the whole, "Jimmy" Cox obscured the issue in the last election worse than any of the numerous distractions which bothered the voter. You might like the League of Nations as well as you pleased, but "Jimmie" was always walking right out and waving his arms and shouting spiffire and spoiling the picture. People might want a diet of Democracy and peace as much as they pleased, but they couldn't swallow "Jimmy." He was bitter.

"Bill" Bryan drops in on Washington and says his say in that fine oratorical way of his, and puts himself courteously at the disposal of the party, either to lead or follow. But "Jimmy" seems to have learned nothing. It's not his thoughts, it's his way of getting them off. He's mean. He can hurt the best Democratic idea worse than a whole Lincoln banquet of speeches against it. His home life may be perfect. His paper may be clean and splendid. But some good Republican must have egged him on to lead the Democrats again.

TODAY'S POEM

By Dorton Brady

WENT ON CUTTING BREAD AND BUTTER

He painted pictures, frivolous and gay,
With deft and cunning ease, and was content.
He was not eager to experiment
With art that should live longer than a day.
"But wait," men said, "until upon his way
He meets with love, and pain, his heart shall vent
His anguish, and his passion shall be spent
On canvases that shall endure for aye."

And sorrow came, and bitterness, and pain,
The artist's soul was broken by his own.
And all his long dreams were ashen gray;
And then, his vision seemed but vain
And men must work, they said, their visions go—
He painted pictures, frivolous and gay.

Food and Contamination

Infantile paralysis is but one of about 20 diseases whose infective material or virus is given off in the secretions or discharges from the nose and throat of the patient—diseases called respiratory infections. I have enumerated them here more than once. Most of these diseases prevail chiefly among your children. When a child's nose runs, be he ill or playing about, his mother usually uses her handkerchief on him. "The mother is not all ways conscientious about immediately washing her hands with soap and water after rendering this service. She goes shopping. She may handle cuts of meat, fish, fowl, fruit exposed for sale, and leave most of the things she has handled for successive shoppers to handle. Thus it is clear how infection may be unconsciously conveyed to the market and back home by some other mother whose little one's nose needs attention as soon as mother gets back.

The strict dust to which food is exposed in defiance of ordinances or sanitary consideration isn't so bad, when we consider that it consists of particles of dried material. The drying and the sunlight this dust has encountered renders it comparatively sterile so far as virulent disease germs may be concerned.

When food is exposed for sale on the street or within a store where flies have access to it, the question is a different one for flies visiting unscreened food or food uncovered with glass do not stop to sterilize themselves.

It is fortunate for the nutrition of the race that we are not endowed with microscopic eyes. Being blind to all things less than 100 microns in diameter most of us complacently imagine that what one can't see with the naked eye will never hurt him—and it won't till the incubation period has passed at any rate.

Few marketers would purchase a piece of meat or a basket of fruit if they saw passersby handle the food. Few marketers object to purchasing food which has been exposed to indirect contamination from that very source. And rarely does anybody hesitate to buy and eat apples, peaches, grapes, berries, cherries, and the like from open stands along the street, without washing and washing with water. The skins of all these fruits, even grapes, are often wholesome and beneficial to eat with the fruit, but never without preliminary washing, and in the case of apples which have passed through a market the washing should really be done with soap and water and brush.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Human Touch

Can human toes be straightened by surgical operation?—(J. F. S.)

Answer—Yes.

Food or Medicine? — has been taking open air treatment for tuberculosis. An old doctor advised — with hypophosphites. What do you think of it?—(Mrs. W. F.)

Answer—Some doctors are old at 30; and some are young at 70. Let us not draw conclusions from mere years. The doctor who advised malt sugar was all right, or perhaps a little extravagant, for malt sugar is of no more nutritive value than molasses or cane sugar and has no medical value. But the doctor who suggested hypophosphites must be a feeble, dithering old fellow, for that myth about hypophosphites was relegated to the museum of medical curiosities long ago.

Peanuts — I am very fond of peanuts and eat perhaps three or four pounds a week. People tell me they will do me harm if I keep on eating them. Will you kindly inform me whether it is bad for me to eat so many peanuts?—(Mrs. R. A. W.)

Answer—A pound of peanuts yields 2,500 calories, about three times as much energy as you would derive from a pound of beef, and twice as much as you would derive from a pound of cheese. Three pounds of peanuts each week would represent as much nourishment as you would derive from drinking 12 quarts of milk. So if you are using the peanuts as a staple in your regular diet or menu you are taking a very nutritious and perfectly wholesome food. But if you are nibbling peanuts as a habit of "piecing" it may be that you are overeating. Assuming you are not now overweight, you would have to be a very active woman indeed to use up so much energy with advantage. Peanuts are one of the cheapest and best foods a housewife can keep in stock and serve in various ways. Eat peanuts, but remember that they are solid food as bread and butter, not meat and potato.

Inflamed Bunion — Please tell me what to do for inflamed bunion.—(Miss C. I. M.)

Answer—If it aches or swells or looks red, apply large hot moist dressings over night—thick coats of gauze or cheesecloth kept wet with hot water in each pint of which a heaping tablespoonful of salt and a teaspoonful of citrate of soda are dissolved.

Twenty-Five Years Ago

Thursday, Feb. 11, 1897

Country roads were reported in fairly good condition.

Dr. William Dafer went to Madison, where he was to be the guest of Governor Schofield. Dr. M. Mitchell, who had been temporarily in charge of the Continental clothing store at Oshkosh during the absence of his brother, William F. Mitchell, returned to Appleton.

Vau Kee, proprietor of the Chinese laundry, purchased Hip Shing's laundry at Kaukauna.

The tax warrant of 1895 was $186,925 of which $69,432 was collected up to Feb. 9, 1895. The tax warrant for 1896 was $262,242 of which $54,867 had already been collected.

George L. Young, the first Appleton station agent of the Ashland division of the Northwestern road, died at Milwaukee. At the very first the road agent entered the city, the track stopping on the hill near Teulish park, where the station was built. It was later extended to Grand Chute Island.

John Hanks, station agent at Kimberly, received his Crescent bicycle which was stolen the previous August. It was found by W. C. Leppia on the State road, with the tires missing.

Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Olds entertained 40 guests at cards. The prizes were won by Mrs. F. R. Rely and Thomas Pearson. Mrs. Joseph Spitz and Mrs. John Stevens assisted Mrs. Olds in receiving.

Local bicycle dealers quite generally were pursuing a rather conservative policy about buying wheels for the approaching season for the reason they expected the demand would be limited.

Appleton relatives were notified of the death of Charles Finnigan of Wrightstown.

Resume of American and Foreign Newspaper Opinion

What the Farmers Accomplished

One impatient farmer at the President's agricultural conference is reported to have described the meeting as an affair of "shaking hands and cutting ice cream." But while its results may not be immediate, it seems to be generally felt that the benefits of the gathering will at least last longer than the ice cream. The very fact that the conference was called is a matter of encouragement to the farmer. The HOUSTON CHRONICLE (Dem.) believes, for it indicates that the public servants in high places have at last awakened to a realization that the time has come.

One of the interesting developments of the conference, the ASBURY PARK PRESS (Ind.) says, "has been the discovery that farming is a business much like anything else," and that the delegates, instead of being the "farmers of the comic section," were business men "with cost sheets and statistics at their fingers' ends." Moreover they were given an opportunity to show that they "understand the economics of the situation as clearly as any man in Washington or any man in Wall Street" and "to tell what they know," the PITTSBURGH LEADER (Prog. Rep.) observes. The NEW YORK NEWS (Ind.) rejoices that the conference demonstrated that "the farmer is doing his own thinking," for "when half the population takes to thinking for itself instead of having formulas worked out for it by those at the top of political organizations, there is much hope for the future."

Agricultural interests in the gathering formulated and presented "a program for the consideration of the administration and of Congress," the ST. LOUIS GLOBE DEMOCRAT (Rep.) reports, which according to the BURLINGTON FREE PRESS (Ind.) "can be summed up as aiming at three things: credits, marketing and co-operation." It was felt for a while after the delegates got into action that the radical element with rather fiery tendencies was in control, but as the PORTLAND OREGONIAN (Ind. Rep.) points out, "the most radical proposals made was that calling for a government guarantee of marketing prices, and in that matter the conference went not further 'than to ask for a careful investigation.' The idea of the guarantee proposal, as the RALEIGH NEWS AND OBSERVER (Dem.) explains it, "was to tax all the people to give the farmers the same profits as the other producers," but "the widest and better view prevailed" and instead of claiming the same privilege the delegates "demanded the repeal of the guarantee policy" as applied to railroads. The SPOKANE SPOKESMAN REVIEW (Ind. Rep.) also commends the sound judgment of the conference in rejecting this proposal for "the adoption would have impaired public confidence" in any of its conclusions. But while repudiating price fixing as a policy the farmers "showed an even more childlike faith in the power of the government," the NEW YORK POST (Ind.) thinks, "by demanding that congress and the President guarantee the farmer shall not be able to establish a fair and honest value for all farm products."

"However," the CANTON (O) NEWS (Ind.) suggests, would be merely legislation "that would permit the formation of pools among growers of agricultural products, the purpose of which would be the marketing of these products in a way that would secure an average price for certain products."

Indeed this group of farmers gathered from the four corners of the country brought out "in striking fashion" the arguments in favor of "cooperation and group sales of farm commodities," says the MANCHESTER UNION (Ind. Rep.), and the AUGUSTA CHRONICLE (Dem.) finds that "the central idea developed at the agricultural conference was co-operative marketing," which in the opinion of the paper "is the very basis of co-operation in anything."

In co-operative movements, as the Pacific coast producers have demonstrated, is the great opportunity for improvement, the KANSAS CITY TIMES (Ind.) holds, and it is reasonable to expect, as a result of the conference, "practical legislation" by which "obstacles to co-operative movement will be removed."

But whatever his marketing facilities, what the farmer will still need most, the CHATTANOOGA NEWS (Dem.) asserts, "is a market," for "what fails him other expedients fail with it," and in their search for "essentials" the farmers "at the conference" found that the fundamental need was not any legislative program, but markets.

Hence the development that apparently has caused considerable surprise in editorial circles—the recommendation by the conference "that this country should have a representative on the European market," and should also go to Genoa." For, as one writer expresses it, in the search for markets "all roads lead to Genoa." "What has become of the old time provincialism of the country, of the West and of the farm?" asks the TOPEKA CAPITAL (Rep.) when such an attitude is possible.

But if the fundamental need was not any legislative program, but markets, the conference having to do wholly with European problems, the paper continues, "is a striking proof of change of front toward all world affairs, and of the broadened outlook that has been the result of the conference, considering their enlightened self-interest."

So far as the political aspect of the gathering is concerned, the CHICAGO POST (Ind.) looked upon it as "an effort to take the wind out of the sails of the agricultural bloc in congress." But if such was its purpose, the POST-WORKER (STAT.-TELEGRAM (Ind. Dem.)) thinks "it has failed signally and has accomplished precisely the opposite effect," for that legislative group was heartily endorsed by a resolution "adopted unanimously."

Troops Under The League

Paris. "Several times lately we have heard speak of putting troops exclusively at the disposition of the League of Nations," says a writer in L'ERE NOUVELLE. "Some people see in this innovation a fresh hope for the firm establishment of peace, a beginning of world-reorganization and at least the end of playing the policeman of Europe which we have been doing ever since the Versailles Treaty. 'No doubt this creation would strengthen the much disputed existence of the League of Nations, it would be a first step towards a new conception of international relations and if put into practice immediately would have the advantage of doing away with the necessity of conferences, which are sometimes delicate between states, every time that military intervention seems unavoidable. On the other hand the militarist parties find a new outlet for their activity in this new organization and hope by this means to increase the troops of all states. In other words, they want to begin arming again instead of at last disarming. Under the pretext of possible present or future eventualities it is perfectly unreasonable to keep a special army of hired soldiers solely for the League of Nations, probably destined to long periods of idleness. It seems senseless for the different nations to be burdened with new military expenses. It would be better, in a word to form this international army from levies made on the existing armies; the troops chosen would be kept up to strength by their respective nations, stationed at specified points, and would be called into action directly by the League of Nations."

"For instance, nothing would prevent choosing the troops which are now occupying Silesia to play the part of an international army, and reinforcing them if need be, by the forces of occupation on the Rhine, which might consist of an American battalion, a Belgian battalion, two British and two French battalions. These troops could then continue to remain on the Rhine and if called up by the League of Nations, would not be replaced. Thus there would be no extra expense, but an increase in authority and the troops would be intervening quickly in case of necessity."

"But the existence of an armed international force would not do away with the armies of each state as the world is at present, as some people seem to think. Convinced anti-militarists dream of an international police force, armed troops, and forget that after the terrible European war nearly all countries are still armed, or in any case, have the men and material ready, to recourse to arms if need be."

"If a wide-spread and real conflict were to take place," the writer continues, "the armed troops, representing the will of the League of Nations could not prevent millions of soldier-citizens working in their homes from taking up arms to protect their interests, whether real or false. To increase the number of international troops would in no wise solve the question."

There is perhaps one other way to stop the manufacturing of arms, munitions and all war material; if all the great powers were to stand for this idea would the governments be strong enough to force it upon the great cosmopolitan industrialists who, since the war, are masters of the world's production and consumption. Since this is the only way that a result may be hoped for to prevent the possibilities of war, until the time when a moral disarmament will soften or offset all the hatred and selfishness, and all exaggerated patriotism. Until then concludes the writer, "the world cannot try to transform itself, the establishment of the League of Nations may be the beginning of this new chapter; the creation of an international army would certainly be a new step towards progress but it must be a force which will guarantee us from the follies of war for the present and in the future."

Changed Smoking Habits

London.—The "good old days" when a tobacco devotee was satisfied with a two cent "D. D." clay pipe, burned through constant usage to a brick brown, and stuffed with cut plug, have passed, and the ever increasing use of the cigarette is noted by the LONDON CHRONICLE in an interesting article on the changed habits of tobacco-users. The article says:

"Changes are taking place in the world's smoking habits. In England the clay pipe has fallen into disuse, as shown by the closing down of the last Bristol clay pipe factory. More over few inn landlords provide clay pipes for their patrons in these days. 'Cigarette smoking has increased enormously. According to the returns of the tobacco trust one well-known brand alone is now turned out in quantities amounting to several millions per week than was formerly the case."

"On the other hand the consumption of cigars is down. In fact, the trade for good-class cigars in England has dropped so much that some retail tobacconists no longer stock the wide variety obtainable some years ago. 'It is the cost that is prohibitive on land; on sea, as recorded by one shipping syndicate, no fewer than 134,500 cigars were smoked in five vessels crossing the Atlantic in a year."

"Brier pipes are increasing in popularity everywhere, and with all classes, including women, for whom special pipes are made. Meerschaum, too, is returning after eight years' absence. Most meerschaum sent to Austria for treatment comes from mines near the Black Sea which have been worked for a thousand years. Before the war many thousands of dollars worth of the miners' work was sent away each year, but the Austrian artisans who worked it into pipes were not available after 1914, and the trade in meerschaum bowls and amber mouthpieces stopped. Even meerschaum workers in England were not available for repairs for a long time."

TWO FLOORS OF GOOD THINGS FOR MEN

No Lack Of Oxygen

BY HERWARD CARRINGTON

Scientist and Author

No sensation is more terrible than being unable to breathe—to get from the air the oxygen that's so essential to our life.

Will the time ever come when the supply of oxygen will be exhausted?

Some have suggested that. They've pointed out that plant life doesn't grow prolifically enough these days to make possible the huge deposits of coal that were plants a few thousand years ago.

It is true that the more oxygen we have, the larger and faster vegetation grows. And our oxygen supply seems to be slowly decreasing.

Then will the time come when lack of oxygen will kill not only all vegetation but the whole human race—when humanity will perish as rats in a trap?

Not very probably. While it's true that oxygen is being slowly withdrawn, it is clear that the mass of the atmosphere has not changed for millions of years—fossil remains show that.

Nor has the chemical composition of the atmosphere changed to an appreciable extent in an equal length of time.

But should there be in the future a lack of oxygen in the atmosphere, it is probably that science will have discovered a method of increasing the supply.

We know that an enormous quantity of oxygen could be generated by the electrolysis of ocean water—that is, splitting up water by means of electricity into its two component gases, oxygen and hydrogen.

So there need be no immediate or even remote fear of the exhaustion of the oxygen and the blotting out of life on our earth.

Watch Eye Disorders

By Dr. R. H. Bishop

In reading of famine conditions in the Near East and in Russia, we also read of trachoma, dread eye disease.

Trachoma is a contagious disease of the eyelids. The watery discharge is capable of producing the disease in the eyes of those who are well.

Trachoma presents a problem more largely economic than perhaps any other in the whole field of preventive medicine. No one dies of the disease. Half of those who have it are eventually made blind.

The economic usefulness of every one who has it is greatly decreased. It is slowly but surely contagious, spreading gradually through families, schools, institutions or whole communities.

The disease is essentially chronic and may last a lifetime. It puts many otherwise able-bodied people on charity or in county institutions.

Some doctors think that the disease is not due to one bacillus alone but that any one of a number of bacilli may cause it and that a neglected case of sore eyes may start it.

If they are right then the way to prevent trachoma is to keep the eyes free from minor "matters." "Pink eye," "sore eyes" and so forth. It would be well, too, to beware of those who have something wrong with their eyes. It might be trachoma.

A. Saint Peter and 30 of his successors were put to death. For 250 years, not a single head of the church died a natural death.

Q. What is specific gravity? J. O. L.

A. Specific gravity is the ratio of weight of a body to the weight of an equal volume of some other body taken on the standard or unit. Water is usually the standard for solids and liquids, while air is the standard for gases. Thus, 19, the specific gravity of gold, shows that, bulk for bulk, gold is 19 times as heavy as water.

A. At a depth of 50 feet below the surface, the pressure of water is 2.15 pounds per square inch.

Q. If I spoil an envelope bought ready stamped, can I cut out the stamp and paste it on another envelope? G. S. M.

A. The Post Office Department says that embossed stamps cut from embossed stamped envelopes are not accepted for postage. A spoiled unused embossed stamped envelope may be redeemed at postage value when presented by the original purchaser.

Q. How closely will a marine chronometer keep time? R. W.

A. Some chronometers will keep correct time within a second a day. Some may gain or lose 15 seconds a day. If this is done regularly, the chronometer should not be regulated since a constant rate is the main object, the variation being easily computed.

LAWRENCE CHOIR MAKES FIRST BOW TUESDAY EVENING

Splendid Musical Organization of 100 Voices to Appear in Concert

The Lawrence choir which made its first bow to Appleton at the time of the state convention of the State Federation of Women's clubs in October will have its first big concert at Lawrence Memorial chapel on Tuesday evening. Mme. Marie Sidenius Zenti, a noted soloist from Chicago, has been procured as the soloist of the concert.

More than 100 trained voices make up the personnel of the choir which includes the entire membership of the Lawrence Mens Glee club of 46 voices. At each of its former appearances the choir has been greatly praised for the perfect balance of male and female voices. This is unusual in most choral organizations where the soprano and alto voices always outnumber the bass and tenor. Music critics have called the choral choir from the college the best in the state. The program to be given by the choir will consist of both sacred and secular part songs which are new to Appleton audiences. Some of these were recently used by the Harvard Glee club. The choir has achieved such skill in singing part songs that it responds readily to the slightest indication of its director. Mme. Zenti who is singing this week with the Landsburg chorus in Oklahoma City will add a great deal to the already attractive program. The Landsburg chorus is one of the three greatest oratoria societies in America.

At the meeting Friday afternoon each member will give a list of the things which she is able to do and from this list, the members will be apportioned to the various activities of the squadron. Each member and each woman who wishes to be a member of the squadron has been asked to wear her club button to the meeting on Friday. A special badge, a slogan and a song will be voted on at the meeting while calling lists, plans for boosting departments and activities will be made. The building fund plans for which the Home Economics department has already raised nearly $100 is of vital importance to every member of the club.

VICTOR HERBERT American Composer of the Present Day

Victor Herbert, born in 1859 at Dublin Ireland, has lived all his artistic life in America. He is the grandson of Samuel Lover, the famous Irish novelist. First known as a violinist soloist, Herbert soon won fame as a conductor. For several years he directed the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra, leaving to organize the Victor Herbert Orchestra of New York.

Herbert has written many sparkling light operas, of which "The Wizard of the Nile", "Serenade," and "Mlle. Modiste" are the best known. He has written two successful grand operas "Natoma" on an Indian theme and "Madeleine", both produced by the Chicago Opera Company. He has written several orchestral compositions, including a violinello concerto, and many short pieces for cello and piano.

"DAGGER DANCE, 'NATOMA'" "Natoma" is one of the most interesting American operas ever written. It was produced in Philadelphia in 1911. The action takes place in California during the early Spanish days. The music is chiefly Spanish and Indian melodies. The "Dagger Dance," based on an Indian theme,

DOCTOR ORDERED WOMAN OBEYED

Took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and is Now Well

Chicago, Illinois. — "You surely gave women one good medicine when you put Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound on the market. After I had my baby I was all run down and so nervous it kept me from gaining. My doctor did everything he could to build me up, then he ordered me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound with his medicine and I am now a new woman. I have had three children and they are all Lydia E. Pinkham babies. I have recommended your medicine to several friends and they speak highly of it. You are certainly doing good work in this world."

—Mrs. ADRIEN TOMSHECK, 10567 Wabash Ave., Chicago, Illinois.

There is nothing very strange about the doctor directing Mrs. Tomscheck to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. There are many physicians who do recommend it and highly appreciate its value.

Women who are nervous, run down, and suffering from women's ailments should give this well-known root and herb medicine a trial. Mrs. Tomscheck's experience should guide you towards health.

EASY TO DARKEN YOUR GRAY HAIR

You Can Bring Back Color and Lustre With Sage Tea and Sulphur

When you darken your hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur, no one can tell because it's done so naturally, so evenly. Preparing this mixture, though, at home is messy and troublesome. At little cost you can buy at any drug store the ready-to-use preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients, called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning all gray hair disappears, and after another application or two your hair becomes beautifully darkened, glossy and luxuriant.

Gray, faded hair, though no disgrace, is a sign of old age, and as we all desire a youthful and attractive appearance, get busy at once with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, and look years younger.

BOOM VALLEY AND CHEESE AT NEENAH CIVIC GATHERING

Appleton Men Invited to Attend Annual Meeting Thursday Night

Wisconsin cheese and the Fox river valley both are emphasized as subjects of national importance in a number of special slides which have been prepared under the direction of the Appleton Chamber of Commerce to be shown on the screen Thursday night at the annual meeting of the Neenah Civic association.

A delegation of local business men will attend the meeting as a token of common interest in the local organization and that of Neenah. Indications are that the meeting will be one of the largest commercial gatherings held in the valley this winter.

Special attention has been given to the preparation of the slides for the meeting. It is known that the Fox River valley was going to begin advertising itself on the silver screen at home than organizations in other parts of the state began to clamor for the slides for the purpose of showing them in local motion picture houses. For this reason the slides have been made as inspirational as possible.

One of the slides shows the world's largest cheese, weighing 31,964 pounds which was made in Appleton. Another is a map of the Fox River valley with the names of the cities and towns located on it. Another one aims to engender the "Boost Wisconsin" spirit. It is believed that if these slides carry the idea to people all over the state it will then be easy to organize for a national advertising campaign, which will not only primarily benefit the Fox River valley but the state as a whole.

Post-Crescent Recipe Contest Is Ended Today

And next week dear contestants, there will be no recipes at all for the contest editor has decided to close the entire cookery contest with candy week! Recipes for candy came in splendidly and there are a number of good weeks which might be conducted but the recipes which still have to be printed run into the hundreds.

Just as cakes and pies have been printed daily, so will the salads, invalid cookery and candy recipes be printed each in their turn. The last weekly prize will be announced on Monday, but no more recipes will be received by the contest editor who wishes to thank all the women and all the men who have taken part in the contest for their splendid and great interest. If the contest has added as many as a dozen new dishes to the cookery of each household who has been interested it has been decidedly worthwhile from the standpoint of the contest editor.

GUNSIGHT PASS

by
WILLIAM
RAINE

The crook broke down. "I'll tell you right where the gold's at. In the lean-to of the shack. Buried in a gunnysack."

They rode back across the valley to the cabin. Miller pointed out the spot where the stolen treasure was cached. With an old axe as a spade Dave dug away the dirt till he came to the sack.

CHAPTER XVIII

Reluctantly, Miller repeated his story to Sheriff Applegate. Under the circumstances he could not say that he was to be returned to the penitentiary, for he recognized that his life at large would not be safe so long as Shorty and Doble were ranging the hills.

The sheriff gave Crawford a receipt for the gold after they had counted it and found none missing.

The old cattleman rose from the table and reached for his hat. "Come on, son," he said to Dave. "I'll say we've done a good day's work. Both of us were under a cloud. Now we're clear. Applegate, you'll get both of the confessions of Miller fixed up, won't you? I'll want the one about George Doble's death to take with me to the governor of Colorado. I'm taking the train tomorrow."

"I'll have the district attorney fix up the papers," the sheriff promised. Emerson Crawford hooked an arm under the elbow of Sanders and left the office.

"I'm wonderin' about one thing, boy," he said. "Did Miller kill George Doble accidentally or on purpose?"

"That Denver bartender said they had been quarreling a good deal. They were having a row at the very time when I met them at the gate of the corral. It's a ten-to-one shot that Miller took the chance to plug Doble and make me pay for it."

"Looks likely, but we'll never know. Son, you've had a rotten deal handed you."

"Nobody can give you back the years of yore life you've lost," the cattleman went on. "But we'll get your record straightened out, anyhow, so that won't stand against you. I know one lil' girl will be tickled to hear the news. Joy always has stuck out that you were treated shameful."

"There's somethin' else I'm goin' to have put into the minutes of the next meetin', Dave," Crawford went on. "And that's yore election as treasurer of the company. I want officers around me that I can trust, son."

"I don't know anything about finance or about bookkeeping," Dave said.

"You'll learn. I want some one for treasurer that's level-headed and knows how to make a quick turn when he has to, some one that uses the gray stuff in his cocoon. We'll fix a salary when we get goin'. You and Bob are goin' to have the active management of this concern. Cattle's my line, an' I aim to stick to it. Him and you can talk it over and fix yore duties so there won't be no conflict. Burns, of course, will run the actual drillin'. He's an AI man. Don't let him go."

Dave was profoundly touched. No man could be kinder to his own son, could show more confidence in him, than Emerson Crawford was to one who had no claims up him.

He murmured a dry "Thank you," then, feeling this to be inadequate, added, "I'll try to see you don't regret this."

The cattleman was a shrewd judge of men. His action now was not based solely upon humanitarian motives. It was good business to make it worth his while to stick to Crawford's enterprises.

CHAPTER XIX

Emerson Crawford helped himself to another fried egg from the platter and shook his knife at the bright-eyed girl opposite.

"I tell you, honey, the boy's a wonder," he insisted. "Knows what he wants and goes right after it. Don't waste any words. Don't beat around the bush."

Joyce jumped up and ran round the table to him. She sat on the arm of his chair, a straight, slim creature very much alive, and pressed her face of flushed loveliness against his head. "It won't be your fault, old duck, if things don't go well with him. But he's so—Oh, I don't know—stiff as a poker. Acts as if he doesn't want to be friends, as if we're all ready to turn against him. He makes me good and tired, Dad. Why can't he be human?"

"Now, Joy, you got to remember—"

"Some one's got to blow up that young man here. But, uncle, and I think I'm elected. It'll be fun to see how he takes it."

Joyce found her chance next day. He would have passed with a bow if she had let him.

She hesitated, uncertain of her opening. Then, "You're disappointing your friends, Mr. Sanders," she said lightly.

"Let's walk," she continued, and he noticed that the eyes and mouth had softened to a tender smile. "I can't talk here, Dave."

They walked out of the town into the golden autumn sunlight of the foothills. Neither of them spoke. She carried her head humbly, chin up, her face a flushed canvas of loveliness. As she took the uphill trail a small breath of wind wrapped the white skirt about her slender limbs. He found in her a new note, one of unaccustomed shyness.

The silence grew a last too significant. She was driven to break it. "I suppose I'm foolish," she began haltingly. "But I had been expecting—all of us had—that when you came home—from Denver—the first time, I mean—you would be the old Dave Sanders we all knew and liked. We wanted our friendship to—help make up to you for what you must have suffered. We didn't think you'd hold us for like this."

"If I could tell you!" He said it in a whisper, to himself, but she just caught the words.

"Won't you try?" she said, ever so gently.

He could not sully her innocence by telling of the furtive whisperings that had fouled the prison life, made of it an experience degrading and corrosive. He told her, instead, of the externals of that existence, of how he had risen, dressed, eaten, worked, exercised and slept under orders. He described to her the cells, four by seven by seven, barred, built in tiers, faced by narrow iron balconies, each containing a stool, a chair, a shelf, a bunk.

"When he had finished he knew that he had failed. She wept for pity and murmured, 'You poor boy. . . . You poor boy!'"

He tried again, and this time, he drew the moral. "Don't you see, in a marked man—marked for life," he hesitated, then pushed on. "You're fine and clean and generous—if I come too near you, don't you see I taint you?"

"Fiddlesticks! You're a man who has been done a wrong. After all, you've been found innocent."

"That isn't what counts. I've been in the penitentiary. Nothing can wipe that out. The stain of it's on me and can't be washed away."

"YOU'RE DISAPPOINTING YOUR FRIENDS, MR. SANDERS," SHE SAID LIGHTLY.

She turned on him with a little burst of femininity, forcibly. "How dare you talk that way, Dave Sanders! I want to be proud of you. We all do. But how can we be if you give up like a quitter?"

The color crept into his face. "I'm not quitting. The point is whether I'm to ask my friends to carry my load for me."

"What are friends for?" she demanded and her eyes were like stars in a field of snow. "Don't you see it's an insult to assume they don't want to stand with you in your trouble? You've been warped. You're eaten up with vain pride. Joyce bit her lip to choke back a swelling in her throat."

"But you've got to look at this my way, too," he urged. "I can't repay your father's kindness—yes, and yours, too—by letting folks couple your name, even in friendship, with a man who—"

She turned on him, glowing with color. "Now that's absurd," Dave Sanders. "I'm not a nice little china doll. I'm a flesh-and-blood girl. And I'm not a statue on a pedestal. Let's stop this foolishness and be sure-enough friends—Dave."

He took her outstretched hand in his brown palm, smiling down at her. "All right. I know when I'm beaten."

"And now I don't know whether I've done me a million dollars' worth of good. Please don't regret it."

"Well, I won't," she added, in a hesitant murmur. "You won't misunderstand?"

His look turned aside the long-lashed eyes and brought a faint flush of pink to her cheeks.

"No, I'll not do that," he said.

CHAPTER XX

Up in the hills back of Bear Canon two men were camping.

"Night's well be hittin' the trail," one growled.

The other nodded without speaking, rose lazily, and began to pack the camp outfit. He was a squat, heavy-set man with a Chihuahua hat. Also he was a two-gun man.

The man who had spoken rose with one lithe twist of his big body. His eyes, hard and narrow, watched the shorter man disappear in the brush. Then he turned swiftly and strode toward the shoulder of the ridge.

In the heavy undergrowth of dry weeds and grass he stopped and tested the wind with a bandanna handkerchief. The breeze was steady and fairly strong. It blew down the canon toward the foothills beyond.

The man stripped from a scrub oak a handful of leaves. They were very brittle and crumbled in his hand. A match fared out. His palm cupped it for a moment to steady the blaze before he touched it to the crisp foliage.

Into a nest of twigs he thrust the smoldering flame. The twigs, dry as powder from a four-months' drought, crackled like miniature fireworks. The grass caught, and a small line of fire ran quickly out.

GOVERNOR URGES DAIRYING FAITH

Tells Cheese Federation to Believe in Own Organization—Praises Krumrey

Plymouth — "Cooperative movements such as yours win or lose according to the amount of faith back of them," Governor John J. Blaine told the Wisconsin Cheese Federation here Wednesday.

Farmers believing in their own business, and in their own ability to conduct that business, will serve their own and the public interests thru co-operation, he said.

"Farmers acting individually may profit now and then, but in the long run they will find themselves victims of a highly organized corporate and monopolistic system, with profits and dividends the only objects sought," the state executive said.

"Governor Blaine paid high tribute to Henry Krumrey, president of the federation, who committed suicide last month, declaring that 'you will scarcely feel the loss of this friend of agriculture except as the years go by.'"

"There is no single individual during our time who has done more to develop sound cooperation than Henry Krumrey. Our heritage from him is an inspiration that will sustain the great movement which he undertook."

Microscope Tells Real Fur From The Imitation Kind

Recent Researches Show That Micro-Analysis in Field of Fur Industry Make it Possible to Detect Fur Frauds.

BY LEON A. HUSMAN, PH. D.
Professor of Cornell University

One of the latest developments of industrial micro-analysis is in the field of the fur industry, where a study of the microscopic structure of animal hairs has shown it to be possible to identify any sample of hair no matter how much it has been stained, clipped, pulled or otherwise altered.

That such knowledge is of immense value in the fur industry can be readily seen. For the microscopist can now distinguish real furs from spurious in a definite and scientific manner.

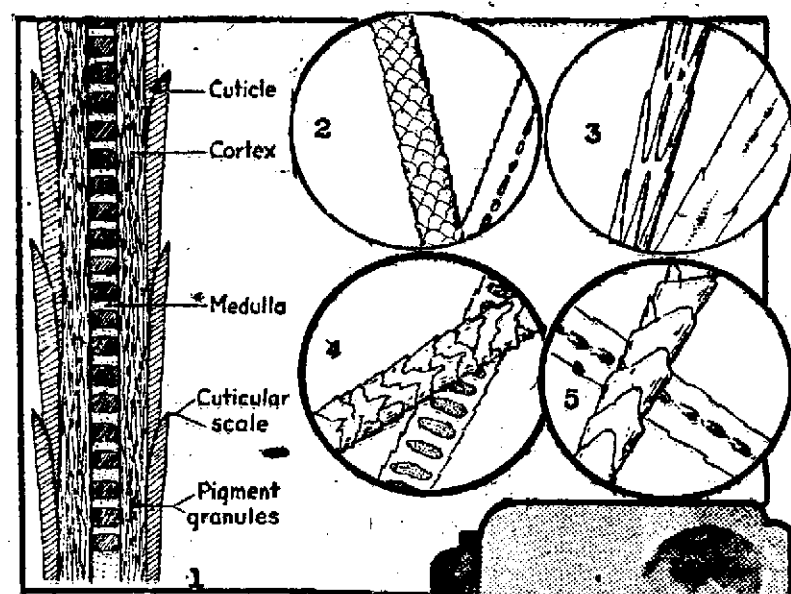

Consider the structure of an animal hair shaft (Figure 1). The hair is not a single horny cylinder, but consists of definite structural parts, which are different for each animal. Through the center of the shaft runs the pith, technically known as the medulla, consisting of a number of cells or chambers, one above the other, with a network of horny threads between.

LIKE SCALES ON FISH
Of course medullas differ in different hairs, but this is their usual make up. The medulla is enclosed by the cortex, a firm, horny, rather elastic, transparent substance, composed of many minute, elongated cells fused together.

Within and among the cells of the cortex lie the pigment granules, which give the characteristic color to the hair.

The outermost integument of the hair shaft is termed the cuticle, and is made up of number of thin plates or scales, laid over one another in an imbricate arrangement, much like the scales on the fish.

It is the forms and varying relationships of these different elements of the hair shaft structure which make it possible to say from what animal any given hair sample was taken.

(1) AN ANIMAL HAIR SHAFT; (2) NUTRIA HAIR; (3) OTTER HAIR; (4) RABBIT HAIR; (5) BEAVER HAIR; (INSET) EXAMINING HAIR—(A) AN ELECTRIC LAMP AND (B) THE MICROSCOPE.

Take some of the most common cases of fur misnaming, for instance the selling of the South American coypu rat (called ordinarily, nutria) for otter. Figure 2 shows the appearance of the hair of the nutria after it has been prepared and examined under the microscope. Compare this with the hair from the European otter (Figure 3). No one acquainted with the methods of micro-analysis could be for a moment deceived.

CAN'T DECEIVE MICROSCOPE
And let us examine a few hairs from a low-priced "beaver" set. It is likely this is nothing but clipped rabbit or hare. Figure 4 shows the appearance of typical rabbit hairs under the microscope, and figure 5 the appearance of true beaver.

Hairs are for ordinary first examination, washed in a mixture of equal parts of 95 per cent alcohol and ether, to remove any oily material from the cuticle and then mounted in some one of the various media used by microscopists.

Mounting means placing the hairs on a glass slide, dropping upon them a minute quantity of the mounting medium, and covering with an extremely thin circle of glass especially made for this purpose. This is the procedure in use for hairy examinations. Often no more complicated treatment is necessary.

The equipment necessary, besides various stains and reagents, is chiefly the microscope and an electric lamp.

MADE SUCCESS OUT OF RUN DOWN FARM

Woman Took Old Cotton Plantation and is Getting Rich Raising Cattle

Muskogee—It was an old cotton plantation—run down, and about ready to pass out.

And then, along came Mrs. N. C. Dresbach—just one of the 24 women in Oklahoma, who are credited with being farmers and farm managers.

But she was just the one this farm needed!

NOW A SUCCESS
Today it is a fruit, chicken, hog, bee and dairy products farm. Incidentally some cotton is raised.

Mrs. Dresbach is the manager. She supervises each branch of work and even tends to the sales end of the business.

Everything is modern—chicken houses, hog pens, barns, etc. One of the prize possessions is a herd of pure bred Berkshire swine believed to be the largest in the country. These have brought many first prize home from county fairs.

Mrs. Dresbach's pet hobby is raising baby chicks. Last season she sold over 3,000.

She also boasts a prize herd of Holstein cattle.

BUSINESS PROPOSITION
"Changing this farm from failure to success was simply a business proposition," says Mrs. Dresbach.

"I aim to prove conclusively that Oklahoma is not dependent on cotton to become famous agriculturally. It hasn't been just luck. We have carried on many experiments in farm activities to determine the most profitable sources of income."

LEARN A WORD EVERY DAY
Today's word is DIDACTIC. It's pronounced—di-dack-tick with accent on the second syllable.

It means—striving, aiming to teach, conveying a moral lesson.

It comes from—Greek—"didaskain" to teach.

Compainion words—didacticism, didactics.

It's used like this: "Milton's Paradise Lost" is a didactic poem" (that is, it is a poem that teaches a lesson.)

FRUIT BOWLS
Fascinating new fruit bowls are made of tinted glass and set in a holder of wrought iron. These come in all sizes, some only large enough to hold fruit for breakfast for two, others are huge things quite capable of serving a family dinner.

The glass is variable so they may be had to match any color scheme.

MUSICIANS TO TOUR COUNTRY

New York—Four young American musicians, national winners of the Young Professional Contests will begin their professional careers the middle of February when they start on tour of the music clubs of the United States.

The winners of the contests are: Devorah Nadworney, contralto, of Bayonne, N. J.; Enrique Ros, piano, New York; Herman Rosen, violin, Cleveland, and George Smith, baritone, of Evanston, Ill.

The Young Professional Contests are held every year and are open to all American trained students. The winners are then sent on tour under the direction of Mrs. Ora L. Port and backed by the National Federation of Music Clubs until they have made their own place in the musical world.

Entrants to the national contests are those which have won contests held in their states by the state music club.

Polly and Paul--and Paris
Chapter 33—Diplomacy
BY ZOE BECKLEY

"Violet went straight home from Paul's office and changed her costume. There was a smile in her eyes as she whipped off her smart black taffeta, the toque with its gaura feather and ornament of flashing jet.

With sure sense of fitness she chose now a gown of sand-colored silk jersey cunningly embroidered with purple and blue, in which bits of painted kid were somehow wrought. Stockings and pumps of tan, a wide black hat of clever lines, long white gloves and a purple parasol completed the whole.

She drove to Rignaud's office. Clerks in the outer room gasped as she sailed through to the president's private door. A delicious fragrance, fumes, floated in per- for certain occasions, as she did clothes.

Rignaud was telephoning as she entered and did not look around. He spoke emphatically, with frowning brows. He hung up, drew a long breath and turned.

"Ah—so it's you, beautiful one. You choose a bad day. Business goes wrong—and I am half ill."

"Then I choose the best day possible, my friend! I have reserved a table at your favorite Foyot's."

"But—" "No buts with me, Come—" They found a favorite corner table at Foyot's.

"Now then," said Vio, when the meal was before them, "tell me your woeful story."

Suet Fine Shortening

UET is an excellent shortening for winter puddings. These puddings must be very well cooked, steamed from two to three hours. The pudding is then more easily digested than another type of pudding made as rich by the use of lard.

And another good point for suet is its cheapness.

EGGLESS STEAMED PUDDING
One-half cup molasses, 1/2 cup brown sugar, 1 cup finely chopped suet, 1 cup seeded raisins, 1 cup sweet milk, 1 teaspoon soda, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 2 teaspoons cinnamon, 1/2 teaspoon cloves, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 3 cups flour.

Work suet with hand till creamy. Stir in molasses and brown sugar. Mix and sift flour, salt, soda, baking powder and spices. Add alternately with milk to mixture. Mix thoroughly and add raisins. Turn into well buttered mold and steam three hours. Serve with lemon juice.

Since suet is unsalted more salt is required in a suet pudding than in a pudding shortened with butter. But remember that both brown sugar and molasses have a salty tang.

CHOCOLATE NUT PUDDING
One-half cup chopped suet, 1/2 cup sugar, 1 cup flour, 1 1/2 teaspoons baking powder, 1/2 cup milk, 1 1/2 squares bitter chocolate, 1 cup nut meats, 1/2 teaspoon salt.

"Not Good Enough"

By Winona Wilcox

NOBBISHNESS is a real and a reliable destroyer of happiness. In marriage it works its worst.

Lovers, left alone, are troubled little by it, but when the world is too much with them, when "what other people think" bothers them greatly, then lovers' worries begin.

One girl puts the problem thus: "My relatives look down on the man I'm to marry. He is considered 'not good enough' for me. His character is finer than that of my own brother, but the latter is well educated while the man I love is not."

"Will the criticism of my family and a big difference in our social planes spoil my marriage?"

Not necessarily, if love is regarded as a rainbow arch uniting two lives. In illustration, consider this story, a true one, although it reads like a scenario:

"A girl, just graduated from a fashionable school, was sent west for a summer. She belonged to an old and a rich family, but neither her aristocratic nor her training for the social world kept her from falling in love with a regular cowboy."

"The man had less than a grammar school education, 'no manners to speak of,' and no art in tying a cravat."

"He fell in love with the girl but was silent because hopeless. By the telegraph known to true lovers, each understood the other. Nevertheless, he let her go back east that fall without a word."

"She stayed with her parents a year, mingled with the men of her own social plane, and then, when spring came around again, she packed her trunks and wired her cowboy to meet her at certain station!"

"That was a daring decision for a girl who had been educated to respect the details of the social code. The richman required no liberal education to get the import of her telegram. He procured the marriage license and, spent the day of the appointment alone in the wilderness. 'The boys' thought he was trying to get up courage to meet the girl, but he was a poet at heart, and perhaps he was only consecrating himself to her and to love."

This Coroner Thinks His Job Is Worthless

Syracuse, N. Y. — Christopher J. Vowinkle, oldest coroner in the United States in point of service, thinks his job should be abolished.

"Coroners are unnecessary," he says. "The work can be done by the department of health. Coroners' investigations never reveal anything that couldn't be found out otherwise."

Vowinkle was elected coroner of Oswego county, N. Y., in 1888 for a three-year term, and has been re-elected and re-elected until the present.

Adventures Of The Twins

"In the Passage"
"The only thing is," went on Pim when Nick suggested that he and Nancy follow Kip into the Gnome village, and try to get the key of the enchanted cupboard that he had stolen.

"The only thing is, you must be careful and say neither 'yes' nor 'no' after you leave here. If you do, you will find yourself walking on your hands, and the Gnomes will steal your shoes. But if you take care to avoid these words and also take care not to let Kip know what you are after you may be able to get the key to the enchanted cupboard. As soon as you do get it, wish yourselves back here at once. I shall be waiting to take you to the wonderful color mines as soon as we get the shoes. And now, my dear little friends, good luck to you both!"

So saying the Brownie king opened the door of the secret passage leading to the Gnome village, closed it again quickly, and as soon as the little adventurers had stepped through.

"Goodness!" said Nancy, "grabbing Nick's arm. 'It's ever so dark, isn't it? I can't see a thing!'"

"Yes," answered Nick, never thinking, certainly never thinking of Pim Pim's warning. As suddenly as a coal wagon turns topside down to unload its burden, the twins found themselves turned upside up, and walking on their hands. Just as the Brownie had said. Fortunately there were no Gnomes there to steal their shoes and after getting over his surprise, Nick said quickly, "Please, Green Shoes, turn us right-side up again."

"Goodness," gasped Nancy when they found themselves standing on their own sturdy little feet once more. "We mustn't forget again, Nick."

"N—Nick was going to say, then stopped, for already he had felt a rocking.

Household Hints

STARTING FIRE
When the fire starts slowly, burn a newspaper in the base of the chimney to warm the flue.

PORK
Pork needs more cooking than other meats if it is to be equally digestible.

CEREALS
Left over cereals can be used very nicely in griddle cakes. Rolled oats can even be used in cookies and small cakes.

ORANGE CAPES
Canton crepe, usually in black, is being fashioned into the smartest capes for summer wear. Occasionally a thin line of monkey fur bands the edges or heavy crepe roses give weight to the garment.

SPARE TIME JOBS FOR FATHER

When you put dishes on ice, in the ice chest, they often slide off and your dinner dessert is spoiled.

Avoid this by cutting small circular rubber pads out of any rubber padding and placing these on the ice first. They will hug the ice and prevent a dish, put upon them, from slipping.

WRESTLERS READY FOR GRUELLING STRUGGLE HERE

TERRIBLE TURK MEETS HILL IN FINISH BATTLE

Heavyweight Grapplers Confident of Victory in Bout Thursday

Trained to the minute and ready for a bitter struggle, George Hill of Appleton and Yussif Mahmout of Constantinople, Turkey, are waiting for the going that will send them into action Thursday night in Armory G in what is expected to be the fiercest, most sensational and most bitting wrestling bout ever staged in this city. Both men are confident of victory.

Hill, pride of Appleton and a contender for the heavyweight championship, was never in better shape on the eve of an important contest than he was Wednesday afternoon after he had finished the training grind for his battle with the "Terrible Turk". He wound up preparation for the match with light exercise in the gymnasium and announced Wednesday night that he is satisfied with his condition. Hill looks and acts like a perfectly trained athlete ready for a gruelling encounter. His eye is clear, his muscles are supple, he has not an ounce of fat on his body and his skin is pink and glows with good health. The Appleton man's mind is entirely free from work and in his final workout Wednesday acted like a boy who is looking forward to some enjoyable game instead of a gruelling struggle in the most strenuous and punishing of sports.

"I am trained to the minute and in perfect condition," Hill said Wednesday. "Victory Thursday night will send me a long way towards the front in the wrestling game and I have left nothing undone. If I lose I will have no excuse to offer."

Mahmout arrived in Appleton Thursday morning. He announced upon his arrival that he is in excellent condition and ready for a hard bout. The "Terrible Turk" said he realizes he is going up against a finished wrestler and a powerful athlete in Hill but is confident he will win in straight falls. The match was night in the last for Mahmout before his bout with Zbyszko in Kansas City on Feb. 14 for the world's championship.

Tickets for the show are selling at a rapid rate and a great crowd will see the mighty men in action. Reservations are being received at the surrounding towns and many Appleton people are buying duplicates. Indications are that every seat in the armory will be occupied when the wrestlers respond to the first song.

Three fast preliminaries have been under way at 8:15. Police Gazette rules will govern the contest.

CAGE FLAG RACE DRAWS TO CLOSE

Neenah and Fond du Lac Tied for Lead in Central Wisconsin Circuit

Green Bay	4	7	.363

With the Central Wisconsin basketball league pennant race rapidly drawing to a close Neenah and Fond du Lac are leading the pack down the stretch in a neck and neck race that probably will not be decided until the final game of the schedule.

Neenah and Fond du Lac are tied for first place and each team has two games to play. However, Fond du Lac appears to have the easier schedule for the remainder of the chase and with an even break should win the championship. Fond du Lac meets Two Rivers in a pair of games this week, one to be played on the Two Rivers floor and the other on the Fond du Lac floor. Fondy is playing better basketball than Two Rivers and should take both games. Neenah meets Green Bay this week and should win easily but Neenah also has a postponed game with Appleton to be played in Armory G and with Appleton keeping up the pace it has been setting for the past few games the Neenah aggregation may receive a setback that will mean the loss of the championship.

The Appleton quintet was scheduled to clash with Oshkosh Thursday night in Armory G but the game has been postponed on account of the Hill-Mahmout wrestling match.

In Purdue Scandal

Introducing Purdue's two leading figures in the college football expose, which threatens to involve star athletes in all sections of the country.

Purdue first cut into the limelight when the athletic authorities definitely refused a new contract to the football coach, William H. "Lone Star" Dietz.

This action followed a report that had been widely circulated that Dietz was alleged to have made attempts to hire Pacific coast high school stars to come to Purdue.

The players involved as well as Dietz have denied the allegations, but it seems the college has decided to pass up Dietz as football coach.

Recently Don S. White ex-captain and star guard of the Purdue basketball team, was disqualified from further athletic competition because of playing semi-professional baseball and basketball.

White was nationally known as a basketball star. He led the Big Ten in scoring last year.

For the past two seasons he has been the popular selection for floor guard on the Western Conference all-star team that is annually picked by the experts.

White's ability in shooting foul goals is uncanny. His best record this year was in a game against Colgate University in which he scored 13 goals in as many attempts.

In the four conference games his team has played this year, White has scored 62 points.

His disqualification practically ruins Purdue's chances for the conference title. Thus far the team has a clean slate.

YANKS UNABLE TO FIND COMPETENT MAN FOR GARDENS

Colonels in Bad Way for Outfielders But Huggins Isn't Worried

By Henry L. Farrell

By United Press Leased Wire New York.—Failing to secure a competent fly chaser, the New York Yanks will have to flounder around until May 20 with a make shift outfield.

While Babe Ruth and Bob Meusel are doing time, Huggins probably will have to send Wally Schang to the garden and rely on young Al Devormer behind the bat.

Perhaps Jim Dunn, boss of the Cleveland Indians, wasn't just talking for home consumption when he said he wouldn't concede the Yanks a thing in the next pennant race.

The situation is not regarded as critical in New York, however. Huggins counts five star pitchers on his fingers and remarks that an outfield is not so necessary if they can't hit 'em out there.

On paper it looks like the Yanks ought to breeze through to a pennant but the race may develop into most any one's.

Washington, Boston and St. Louis have added strength since the close of last season. It would not be a shock to see the Senators up around the top from the start and any club that boasts of the stick strength in the Red Sox lineup cannot be taken lightly.

If Dave Danforth lives up to expectations, the Browns ought to give the present champions all they are looking for in the way of opposition.

The Cleveland Indians cannot be counted out of the race. Tip Speake's line isn't over impressive but Speaker always has a fighting ball team and spirit means much.

Ty Cobb needs some pitchers and a shortstop. Before the season opens he may be able to make some kind of a deal with the Yankees for Johnny Mitchell, the California star who spent last season on the bench and who is in line for the same duty this year.

CLASSICS of the DIAMOND

Frank Chance when managing the Chicago Cubs and winning pennants in the National League was known as the "Peerless Leader."

When he shifted from the Cubs to the Yankees in the American League, the title of course went with him.

The hall club that was handed over to Chance to represent New York in the American League was far from a strong one. No manager could have done better with it than did Chance.

One of the players who was expected to shine for Chance was Birdie Cree. The previous year he had gone big and Chance looked for him to be one of his best bets.

Cree had a tough year. He got away to a poor start and bad luck pursued him all year.

The failure of Cree to show as well as a number of other players, highly touted, didn't add any luster to Chance's record as a manager. One day after Cree had struck out with the bases filled, Chance was ready to commit murder. As Cree reached the Yankee dugout, Chance, ready to explode, fairly yelled:

"So you're the great Cree. You haven't showed me a thing."

What also goes for you as the Peerless Leader," Cree replied. "The disappointment is mutual."

You can imagine what Chance said.
